

2021 CECE SUMMER MEETING SESSION PROPOSAL GUIDELINES

In developing the Summer Meeting agenda, we will explore the many ways that public universities can Maximize Public Value through Partnerships. We are specifically interested in thematic, interactive, and engaging proposals falling within the three tracks below.

- Strategic Pandemic Response/Post-Pandemic Restart
- Fostering Racial and Societal Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion
- Strategically Leveraging Across CECE Efforts to Foster Talent, Innovation ecosystems, and Place Development and Community Engagement

We expect proposals to stimulate an engaging and substantive conversation about how public universities can leverage these thematic areas to contribute to the communities they serve. We also highly encourage session proposals featuring Diverse Session Participants (considering gender, ethnicity, regional locations, and/or institutions) and Diverse Session Voices including government, industry, & the community. We look forward to receiving your proposal.

FULL TRACK DESCRIPTIONS

1. Strategic Pandemic Response/Post-Pandemic Restart

How can CECE leaders leverage economic and community engagement partnerships with government, businesses, community organizations, higher ed institutions, and others to meaningfully support their communities' pandemic response, the forthcoming post-pandemic restart, and tertiary community impacts of the pandemic?

How can these economic and community engagement partnerships help enhance and elevate the public value propositions of public universities?

2. Fostering Racial and Societal Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion

How can CECE members build economic and community engagement partnerships that contribute to honest, intentional, and authentic racial and social diversity, equity, and inclusion on campus and in the communities universities serve?

What are best practices for fostering lasting, reciprocal partnerships around equity and inclusion and how do you leverage these practices regionally and within your institution?

3. Strategically Leveraging Across CECE Efforts to Foster Talent, Innovation ecosystems, and Place Development and Community Engagement

The "talent-innovation-place" framework is central to the work of many in the Commission and of APLU. In light of our times, what internal and external partnerships are you strengthening or building that strategically leverage the intersection of talent, innovation and place in ways that maximize your institution's public value?

How do these partnerships bring together community engagement and economic development efforts to create public value?
